

Welcome to Corepoint Health — the next generation of NeoTool!

We have changed the name of our company to Corepoint Health. Change usually brings a mix of continuity and fresh approaches. This will be the case for us.

What continues is the ownership and leadership of our company and our intense commitment to delivering exceptional customer service while offering innovative, practical products that achieve results for your operations.

Why change to Corepoint Health? We wanted a brand that encompasses a truer image of our current products and goals. Delivering exceptional customer service is a central part of our operating principles, as is producing products that are an integral part of healthcare workflow and operations. We believe Corepoint Health is the brand that is better aligned with our current offerings and our future direction.

Along with Corepoint Health, you will see new product names. Corepoint Connections is our first product family. Our product names will begin with “Corepoint” and then follow with a descriptive name. The new product names are outline below.

The Corepoint Connections suite offers a proven way to integrate smoothly within an application environment and exchange patient data effectively within a healthcare community.
